Who are the children in Foster Care that need you?

Children who are unable to live with their birth parent(s).

Siblings who deserve to live together.

Older children and teenagers.

Children with medical and other special needs.

Why do children enter Foster Care?

Children enter Foster Care when their safety or well-being can not be guaranteed where they were living. Children have been found to be abused or neglected by the court.

What happens when they are in Foster Care?

Social Services works with the birth family to rectify the reasons that the child(ren) had to enter Foster Care. The initial goal is for the child(ren) to return to a safe home with their birth family.

What happens when children are unable to return home?

When children are unable to return to a safe home with their birth family, Social Services works to legally free them so they can be adopted. Foster-Adopt Resource Parents can be considered as a possible forever family for our children.
